

XMC4000 / XMC1000 Workshop: 32-Bit Industrial Microcontroller Arm® Cortex®-M4/ Arm® Cortex®-M0 - Face-to-Face Training

Objectives

Based on the knowledge of the Arm® Cortex™-M4 Architecture (see training "Cortex™-M4, M3, M1, M0: Architecture and Embedded Programming"), you know the on-chip periphery (basic and special peripheral modules) and features of the XMC4000 family. You are able to program low-level drivers for this hardware and test them with a debugger. Moreover, you can generate routines for DMA, interrupts and exceptions.

Participants

Hardware and software architects, hardware and software developers, test engineers

Requirements

Knowledge of ANSI-C as well as experience with programming and the set-up of the Arm® Cortex™-M4 architecture. Knowledge of DSP is an advantage.
